have already been sold, a large proportion of which has been sent by mail to ladies in different parts of the country; and letters are being received daily containing the warmest expressions of gratitude for the benefits which have been derived from their use. The following is an extract from a letter of a lady of high standing who has authorized her name to be communicated confidentially to other ladies wishing to make inquiries respecting the modus operands of the pills:

"My daughter, now aged 17, was for three years painfully afflicted with obstructions from which, at times, she suffered severely. We expended a large sum in physicians' free, but with very triffing and temporary relief. Her complexion became tinged with a sallow greenish hue, and her whole system so much diseased that she was ronounced to be rapidly going into consumption. At the stage I saw your advertisement in a New York paper. It faith was very weak, but as a last resort I sent for a box it gave so much relief that a second and third were used. At I now have the great pleasure of informing you that my aghter's health is completely restored; her sallow complexion is replaced by the rosy glow of health; her gloomy meiancholy, by that cheerful buoyancy of spirits, which is usual in girls of her age; and if the pills had cost ten times as much, it would be no comparison with the happiness resulting from their use."

N. B .- The mgredients of these pills are perfect-y HARMLESS in their medicinal operation on the most delicate female con titutions, yet as prepared and tombined by Dr. Duponco, their specific action is such that married ladies should use them with proper precaution. Indeed, their use is not at all indicated during pregnancy. For the same reason, as every ph sician knows, medicines which act in this way are the very best that can be used for restoring the natural, healthy tone and functions of the

EVENING STAR

A WINTER SABBATH WALK.

How dazzling white the snowy scene! deep, deep Ine stillness of the winter Sabbath day-Not even a footfall heard. Smooth a e the field, Each hollow pathway level with the plain; Hid are the bushes, except hat here and there, Are seen the topmost bushes of briar and broom. High ridged, the whirlwind has almost reached The powdered key-stone of the churchyard porch, Mute hangs the hooded bell; the tombs lie buried, No step approaches to the house of prayer.

The flickering fall is o'er; the clouds disperse And show the sun, hang o'cr the welkin's verge, Shooting a bright but ineffectual beam O. all the sparkling was e. Now is the time To visit nature in her grand attire; Though perilous the mountainous ascent, A noble recompense the danger brings. How beautiful the plain stretched far below invaried though it be, save by you stream With azure windings, or the leafless wood. But what the beauty of the plain, compared To that sublimity which reigns enthroned Ho ding joint rule with solitude divine, Among you rocky fells, that bid defiance To steps most adventurously bold; There silence dwells profound; or if the cry Of high poised eagle break at times the calm, The mantled echoes no response return.

But let me now explore the deep sunk dell. No footprint, save the covey's or the flock's, Is seen along the rill, where marshy springs Still rear the grassy blade of v vid green. Beware, ye shepherds of these treacherous haunts, Nor linger t ere too long; the wintry day Soon closes; and full oft a heavier fall Heaped by the bla t, fills up the shelter'd glen, While gurgling deep below, the buried rill Mines for itself a snow-covered way. O, then, Your helpless charge drive from the tempting spot And keep them on the blak hill's stormy side, Where night-winds sweep the gathering drift away. So the G eat Shepherd leads the heavenly flock. From faithless pleasures full into the storms If life, where long they bear the bitter b a t. Intil at length the vernal sun looks forth, Sedimm'd with showers; then to the pastures green He brings then , where the quiet waters glide, The streams of tife, the Silioah of the soul.
